

MRWED REACHES OUT TO 10,000 STUDENTS

February 2008: Queensland based training organisation MRWED (Marc Ratcliffe Workplace Education and Development) has secured its placement as one of Australia's leading providers of the nationally recognised Certificate IV in Training and Assessment having recently reached a milestone 10,000th student enrolment in trainer training.

"I believe one of the reasons people choose to study with MRWED is because of our range of flexible study options. We aim to provide training and assessment programs that are superior in quality, flexible in delivery and competitive in price. I feel this is a major factor in past students now choosing to comeback to us to keep current or update their skills". Said Principal and Founder of MRWED, Marc Ratcliffe.

MRWED started its operation in Caboolture 2000 and over the past eight years has grown to have MRWED Training and Assessment Centres in Adelaide, Brisbane, Melbourne, Newcastle, Sydney and may include a permanent centre in Perth later this year.

MRWED trainers strive to develop students' skills, knowledge and attitudes in the key areas of best practice in becoming workplace trainers, assessors and verifiers. MRWED have corporate clients, large and small and are very experienced in customising the program to suit unique organisational needs.
